Overview

About Daniel

Daniel H. Wade is an associate in the Boston office of Fish & Richardson P.C. He was previously a summer associate with the firm in 2019 and 2020. He focuses his practice on patent litigation support in electrical and computer technologies, trade secret litigation, and privacy and data security. Dan has experience analyzing issues such as divided infringement, patent enforceability, and IPR institution decisions; advising on patent harvesting proposals; and assisting with fact deposition and oral argument.

Prior to joining Fish, Dan was an application support engineer at MathWorks. During law school, Dan was a member of the BU/MIT Technology Law Clinic, where he counseled a wide range of BU and MIT students and ventures on issues such as EU GDPR and California CPRA compliance, export control under EAR and ITAR, DMCA anti-circumvention regulations, and FERPA compliance.
