Overview

About Jeanel

Jeanel Sunga is an associate in the Silicon Valley office of Fish & Richardson P.C. She was previously a summer associate with the firm. Jeanel focuses her practice on patent litigation in electrical and computer technologies, with experience in litigation support handling issues such as patent validity, patent markings, and damages. Jeanel has also handled trade secret litigation issues that include non-competition agreements, damages from the misappropriation of trade secrets, and Daubert standards for expert testimony.

During law school, Jeanel worked for two legal clinics: the Domestic Violence Project Clinic and the Health Rights Law Clinic. Respectively, she helped write legal memoranda that helped to secure child support payments and assisted Washington, D.C., Medicaid recipients with ensuring proper healthcare coverage. Jeanel was the executive managing editor of the American Intellectual Property Law Association Quarterly Journal and published a note in the journal entitled, "Trade Secrets and the GDPR: 'Reasonable Efforts' of Cybersecurity and the Right for Trade Secrets to Be Forgotten."
