Overview

About Meredith

Meredith Bayer is an associate in the Boston office of Fish & Richardson P.C., where she focuses her practice on trademark and copyright prosecution, counseling, enforcement, and litigation. She has also assisted with pro bono matters, including immigration matters for Kids in Need of Defense (KIND) and asylum seekers, as well as working with national and local nonprofit organizations dedicated to preventing homelessness. She was previously a summer associate with the firm.

During law school, Meredith was the senior note and comment editor for the American University Law Review, Vol. 70. She was a student attorney with the WCL Glushko-Samuelsan Intellectual Property Law Clinic, where she represented clients in TTAB proceedings and advised small business owners on their copyright and trademark needs. She also interned at the National Geographic Society and Rosetta Stone, where she worked with in-house counsel on their intellectual property matters.
