Post-Grant for Practitioners: Choosing Whether to Challenge a Patent at the PTAB - Has Shaw Watered Down Petitioner Estoppel?

Join us on Wednesday, August 9, for our next Post-Grant webinar: Choosing Whether to Challenge a Patent at the PTAB - Has Shaw Watered Down Petitioner Estoppel? In this webinar, Fish principals Karl Renner and Gwilym Attwell will explore the implications of the Federal Circuit Shaw decision by looking at recent district court and PTAB decisions addressing petitioner estoppel, while also discussing techniques to mitigate the risks of potential estoppel as well as implications for parties considering a Post-Grant Review challenge.

Estoppel – What Is It?

Estoppel – Several Different Types

Body	Basis	Description
District Court, ITC	35 U.S.C. §§315(e) and 325(e)	Applies to Petitioner's actions at the District Court and ITC
PTAB	35 U.S.C. §§315(e) and 325(e)	Applies to Petitioner's actions in post-grant proceedings
US PTO	37 C.F.R. §42.73	Applies to Patent Owner's (d)(3)) as well as Petitioner's (d)(1)) actions at the PTO

Estoppel – Initially Seen As The Big Downside To Post-Grant Challenges

"Fear makes the wolf bigger than he is."

- German Proverb

35 U.S.C. § 315(e)

- 35 U.S.C. § 315(e)(1)
 - Proceedings before the office

The petitioner in an inter partes review of a claim in a patent under this chapter that results in a final written decision under section 318(a), or the real party in interest or privy of the petitioner, may not request or maintain a proceeding before the Office with respect to that claim on any ground that the petitioner raised or reasonably could have raised during that inter partes review.
- 35 U.S.C. § 315(e)(2)
 - (2) Civil actions and other proceedings

The petitioner in an inter partes review of a claim in a patent under this chapter that results in a final written decision under section 318(a), or the real party in interest or privy of the petitioner, may not assert either in a civil action arising in whole or in part under section 1338 of title 28 or in a proceeding before the International Trade Commission under section 337 of the Tariff Act of 1930 that the claim is invalid on any ground that the petitioner raised or reasonably could have raised during that inter partes review.

Scope Of Estoppel

- Estoppel requires at least a Final Written Decision
- Scope of estoppel - “any ground that the petitioner raised or reasonably could have raised during” the proceeding
 - Only applies to the claims covered by the decision
 - Only applies to patents and printed publications
- Estoppel extends to:
 - Proceedings before the PTO
 - Civil actions
 - ITC actions

Previous Readings Of Estoppel Provision

Range of interpretation:

- One end - estoppel applies to all patents and printed publications that could have been raised
- Other end - estoppel applies to only those patents and printed publications instituted and addressed in the FWD
- Recent Federal Circuit decisions have partially clarified the breadth of estoppel
 - Shaw Industries Group v. Automated Creel Systems, No. 2015-1116 (Fed. Cir. 2016)
 - HP Inc. v. MPHJ Technology Investments, LLC, No. 2015-1427 (Fed. Cir., 2016)
 - SAS Inst., Inc. v. ComplementSoft, LLC, 825 F.3d 1341, 1354 (Fed. Cir. 2016).

Recent Decisions Relating To Estoppel – The Courts

District Court And Federal Circuit Cases

Case	Date	Court
Clearlamp, LLC v. LKQ Corp	3/18/2016	N.D. Ill.
Shaw Indus. Grp. v. Automated Creel Sys.	3/23/2016	Fed. Cir.
HP Inc. v. MPHJ Technology Investments, LLC	4/5/2016	Fed. Cir.
Illumina Inc. v. Qiagen NV	9/9/2016	N.D. Cal.
Intellectual Ventures I LLC v. Toshiba Corp.	1/11/2017	D. Del.
Verinata Health, Inc. v. Ariosa Diagnostics, Inc.	1/19/2017	N.D. Cal.
Great West Cas. Co. v. Intellectual Ventures II LLC	2/15/2017	PTAB
Douglas Dynamics, LLC v. Meyer Prods. LLC	4/18/2017	W.D. Wis.
Biscotti v. Microsoft	5/11/2017	E.D.Tex.
Oil-Dri Corporation of America v. Nestle Purina Petcare Company	8/2/2017	N.D. Ill.

The Clearlamp Decision (N.D. Ill.)

- Clearlamp LLC v. LKQ Corp., No. 12C 2533 (N.D. Ill. March 18, 2016)
- Decided a few days before Shaw
- LKQ Corp. had filed an IPR on grounds based, in part, on three prior art references
- In the district court litigation, LKQ moved for summary judgment of invalidity on surviving claims based on commercially available product (as evidenced by a datasheet) in combination with the three prior art references
- Clearlamp argued that product was cumulative to IPR art, because product was covered by one of the patents relied upon
- Holding: Estoppel does not extend to prior art that was not reasonably available during an IPR, even if redundant or cumulative to prior art used during the IPR; the court concluded that “[t]he relevant inquiry...is not whether the ground is redundant of a ground that was asserted but, rather, whether the ground reasonably could have been raised.”

The Clearlamp Decision

- Clearlamp did not adequately establish that cumulative art was “reasonably available”
- Court pointed out that the proponent of an estoppel argument [plaintiff/patent owner] bears the burden of showing that a skilled searcher’s diligent search would have found the prior art in question. One way to make this showing is:
 - “(1) to identify the search string and search source that would identify the allegedly unavailable prior art and
 - (2) present evidence, likely expert testimony, why such criterion would be part of a skilled searcher’s diligent search.”
- Depomed, Inc. v. Purdue Pharma LP et al., 3-13-cv-00571 (NJD) & Star EnviroTech, Inc. v. Redline Detection, LLC et. al., 8-12-cv-01861 (CACD) – Similar holdings

The Shaw and HP Decisions (Fed. Cir.)

- Shaw Industries Group v. Automated Creel Systems, 817 F.3d 1293 (Fed. Cir. 2016); HP Inc. v. MPHJ Technology Investments, LLC, 817 F.3d 1339 (Fed. Cir. 2016)
- PTAB instituted each IPR on fewer grounds than in petition(s), but denied the other grounds as redundant
- In Shaw, Fed. Cir. said “The IPR does not begin until it is instituted. . . Thus, Shaw did not raise—nor could it have reasonably raised—the [ground found redundant by PTAB] during the IPR. The plain language of the statute prohibits the application of estoppel under these circumstances.” Shaw, 817 F. 3d at 1300.
- In HP, the Fed. Cir. said “As we explained supra, however, the noninstituted grounds do not become a part of the IPR. Accordingly, the noninstituted grounds were not raised and, as review was denied, could not be raised in the IPR. Therefore, the estoppel provisions of § 315(e)(1) do not apply.” HP, 817 F. 3d at 1347.

District Court Cases Applying Shaw And HP

- Category 1: Estoppel DOES NOT Apply to Redundant Grounds
 - Illumina Inc. v. Qiagen NV (N.D. Cal.)
 - Douglas Dynamics, LLC v. Meyer Prods. LLC (W.D. Wis)
- Category 2: Estoppel DOES NOT Apply to Below-Standard Grounds
 - Verinata Health, Inc. v. Ariosa Diagnostics, Inc. (N.D. Cal.)
 - Douglas Dynamics, LLC v. Meyer Prods. LLC (W.D. Wis)
- Category 3: Estoppel DOES Apply to Below-Standard Grounds
 - Precision Fabrics Group, Inc. v. Tietex International, Ltd. (NCMD)
- Category 4: Estoppel DOES NOT Apply to Grounds Never Raised
 - Intellectual Ventures I LLC v. Toshiba Corp. (D. Del.)
- Category 5: Estoppel DOES Apply to Grounds Never Raised
 - Cobalt Boats, LLC v. Sea Ray Boats, Inc. (VAED)
 - Oil-Dri Corporation of America v. Nestle Purina Petcare Company (N.D. Ill.)
 - Biscotti v. Microsoft (E.D.Tex.)

Category 1 & 2: The Douglas Dynamics Decision

Douglas Dynamics, LLC v. Meyer Products LLC 3-14-cv-00886 (WIWD)

- The court granted plaintiff's motion to clarify an earlier order concerning the meaning of "ground for invalidity" for purposes of post-IPR estoppel under 35 U.S.C. § 315(e), deferred ruling on whether defendant was estopped from asserting a specific theory on invalidity

"[Plaintiff] essentially asks the court to explain what a 'ground for invalidity' is. . . . [T]he defendant is not locked into the precise argument made in its IPR petition. But if the new theory relies on different, uncited portions of the prior art, attacks different claim limitations, or relies on substantially different claim constructions, then the new theory is tantamount to a new invalidity ground, and the court will treat it like a non-petitioned ground subject to estoppel. . . it hardly seems fair to restrict [defendant] to the claim construction used in the IPR, if [plaintiff] is free to re-tool its infringement case with new claim constructions, as [plaintiff] suggests that it is free to do. I will defer a decision on whether these principles would estop [defendant] from contending that claim 6 is anticipated by Keeler under the alternative interpretation of [the claim term]. The parties are free to argue the § 315(e) estoppel issue at summary judgment."

Category 2: The Verinata Decision

- Verinata Health, Inc. v. Ariosa Diagnostics, Inc., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 7728, *9-11 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 19, 2017).
- Verinata alleged infringement of claims that had survived an IPR proceeding
- Ariosa had asserted 3 obviousness grounds in the IPR;
- Board instituted only on Ground 1; finding Ground 2 redundant and finding that IPR petitioner had failed to establish reasonable likelihood of success for Ground 3
- In the Final Written Decision, the Board held that Ariosa had failed to show that the challenged claims were unpatentable over Ground 1
- The District Court found that:
 - Ground 3 was not subject to estoppel because it was denied institution
 - Although Ground 2 was denied institution as redundant, it was nevertheless subject to estoppel because, as it was merely a subset of instituted Ground 1, the ground was raised, or reasonably could have been raised, during the IPR trial

Category 3: The Precision Fabrics Decision

Precision Fabrics Group, Inc. v. Tietex International, Ltd. 1-13-cv-00645 (NCMD)

- The court granted plaintiff's motion for summary judgment that its flame retardant fabric patents were not invalid following inter partes review of one patent and a denial of inter partes review of the other patent.
- Although Tietex conceded that it was estopped from arguing invalidity on the basis of three references , it maintained that it was not estopped from arguing invalidity on the basis of three other references, as the PTAB did not address these references in its final decision.
- “However, 35 U.S.C. § 315(e)(2) estops Tietex from asserting that the [patent] is invalid not only on grounds raised during the inter partes review, but also on grounds that 'reasonably could have [been] raised' during the inter partes review. Tietex is therefore foreclosed from asserting the invalidity of the [patent] during this proceeding. . . . [T]he PTAB’s refusal to institute an inter partes review [of the other patent] is indicative of the weakness of [defendant's] claim of invalidity as to [that] patent, as the PTAB will not authorize an inter partes review unless 'there is a reasonable likelihood' that a petitioner would prevail in proving invalidity.“

Category 4: The Intellectual Ventures Decision

- Intellectual Ventures I LLC v. Toshiba Corp., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 3800, *4 (D. Del. Jan. 11, 2017)
- The court granted plaintiff's motion for summary judgment "to prevent [defendant] from asserting invalidity challenges" due to IPR estoppel as to references raised during a prior IPR, but denied the motion with respect to references that could have been raised in the IPR, but were not.
- "Although [plaintiff's] argument in this regard is perfectly plausible, in the sense that [defendant] certainly could have raised these additional obviousness grounds based on public documents at the outset of their IPR petition, the Federal Circuit has construed the above language quite literally. More specifically, the Court determined in [Shaw] that, because the PTAB rejected a certain invalidity ground proposed by the IPR petitioner, no IPR was instituted on that ground and, therefore, petitioner 'did not raise -- nor could it have reasonably raised -- the [rejected] ground during the IPR.'"
- Although extending the above logic to prior art references that were never presented to the PTAB at all (despite their public nature) confounds the very purpose of this parallel administrative proceeding, the court cannot divine a reasoned way around the Federal Circuit's interpretation in Shaw. [Defendant] may not raise obviousness based on [3 references raised during IPR] against the relevant claims of the [patent] in the case at bar. However, [defendant] may present the additional invalidity grounds at trial."

Category 5: The Cobalt Boats Decision

- The court granted plaintiff's motion in limine to preclude defendants from asserting three prior art references that reasonably could have been raised in their petition for inter partes review under a narrow reading of Shaw. "The Court adopts the narrow reading of [Shaw] and finds that estoppel applies to grounds that the petitioner raised at the IPR itself and could have raised in the IPR petition or at the IPR itself. . . . It would waste this Court's time to allow a stay for a year during IPR proceedings and then review invalidity arguments that Defendants could (and perhaps should) have raised in their IPR petition. . . ."
- "[Defendants] assert that they are arguing invalidity based on a combination of prior art products with other references and that they could only raise prior art patents and printed publications in IPR. . . . The authority is sparse on this issue, and the Court defers ruling on the admissibility of references involving prior art products.
- The court granted plaintiff's motion in limine to preclude defendants from asserting invalidity grounds based on competitors' product manuals because the manuals were reasonably available through searching and therefore could have been raised as grounds for unpatentability in defendant's earlier petition for inter partes review.
